

Western COLLOID MADE IN AMERICA

Western Colloid's products are proudly manufactured in the United States at three manufacturing plants located in; Los Angeles and Oakland, California and Alvarado, Texas.

Since its inception, Western Colloid has been recognized in the roofing industry as a leader in Fluid Applied Roofing, Reflective Coating Systems and Premium Asphalt Sealcoats.

Our founder began applying coatings and fluid applied systems in the 1960's and the Western Colloid brand was born in the 1970's when he built his own manufacturing facilities. As a successful contractor he understood the need for consistent, quality products; he also knew that to help this sector of the roofing industry grow he would have to provide contractor services that were effective and unique.

Today, Western Colloid operates the largest fleet of tankers servicing the roofing and coating industry in the United States. This footing in bulk transportation service allows contractors to keep installation costs low and helps the environment by reducing the use of barrels and pails. Free field inspections, prompt delivery, and exceptional service overall are a few of the other perks we provide to our customers.

We use state of the art facilities to manufacture our asphalt emulsions and water-based coatings. We develop and manufacture some of the finest roof coatings available.

We are committed to producing systems that are environmentally friendly and energy efficient. Many of our products and systems meet or exceed the industry codes and standards such as FM Global now (FM), Underwriters Laboratories (UL), Miami-Dade, ICC-ES, Cool Roof Rating Council, etc. Furthermore, we are committed to reducing landfill use by indefinitely extending the life of existing roof systems.

Please contact us for some terrific products, excellent support or even a plant visit at any of this manufacturing locations.
